

Jamiel joined the Tampa Bay Symphony in 2017 as a member of the first violin section, after moving back to his hometown of Tampa from Tallahassee. Jamiel is a two-time graduate of Florida State University, where he received his B.A. in Music and certificate in Violin Performance, with a double major in German, as well as a B.S. in Civil Engineering. During his time at FSU, he studied violin under Dr. Benjamin Sung. He currently works in Tampa as a civil engineer helping design roads and highway interchanges, and is attending University of South Florida pursuing his Masters in Civil Engineering. In his free time, Jamiel enjoys practicing yoga, playing beach volleyball, and spending time with his cat.