

Jim Paradies

James (New Paltz, NY) has performed live on television and radio as a classical soloist and has played with organizations such as the Tampa Bay Symphony, Suncoast Symphony Orchestra, Hudson Valley Philharmonic, Woodstock Chamber Orchestra, Hudson Valley Opera, and the Northern Dutchess Symphony Orchestra. In addition, James has performed musicals with Yorktown Stage, Tri-Arts, Rhinebeck Theater, and Up in One Productions.

James was a student of Grant Cooper (Artistic Director & Conductor of the West Virginia Symphony Orchestra), Ron Anderson (Principal of the New York Ballet Orchestra), and Bob McCoy (with Doc Severinsen on Johnny Carson's Tonight show) James was a member of the Tudor Brass Players of New York; one of New York's premier brass quintets. James and his wife Julie (on violin) join with many musical friends to comprise the Paradies Ensemble and have performed at hundreds of events in the New York tri-state area and St. Petersburg/Tampa Florida.

(www.paradiesensemble.com) James' CD and other recording with the Paradies Ensemble are available on the web at jamesparadies.com.

